What the Early Christians Believed About the Difference Between the Spirit and Soul David Bercot

Most of us have been taught that the man's soul and spirit are the same. We have also been told that we are unable to do good in our human state—without being born again. But is this true? The Scriptures talk about body, soul, and spirit. The early Christians believed that fallen man can still do good because of our spirit, which reflects the consciousness of God in man. A very different way of looking at the nature of man—in contrast to the Augustinian/Calvinist view.
