“Conventional” Christianity has taken the position that God has a “bag” of gifts and that these gifts are dispensed to people as God chooses. This “bag” of gifts includes; apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, speaking in tongues, interpretation of tongues, prophecy, word of knowledge, word of wisdom, discerning of spirits, faith, miracles, gifts of healing, governments, music, mercy, and etc.

Conventional Christianity considers itself to be scripturally based, but the scriptures promote and declare the supernatural, the scriptures themselves being revelation from God. This avoidance and dismissal of the supernatural inheritance of the church is realized in the label “gifts of the spirit”. The church is placed in the position of waiting for God to act upon it to produce supernatural experience rather than the church acting in faith and manifestation of the spirit.

These items are not “gifts of the spirit”, they are not to be waited for, and they are to be used by all those who have the spirit.

This book is an examination of the scriptural, historical and sociological evidence.
